Press Release – askui Advisory Board

Karlsruhe, Germany - Jul. 26, 2021:

askui contributes to the vision of a functional digital world through an innovative UI test automation solution. By using state-of-the-art Deep Learning algorithms, no-code automation is achieved without classical selectors or record and replay approaches.

With the incorporation on 03.03.2021 we are now also pleased to announce the advisory board. As the first member we would like to introduce Daniel Knott.

Daniel loves digital products with high quality being web or native mobile applications. In the last 12 years, he worked as a software test engineer for different native mobile apps as well as a product manager. Daniel wrote books about mobile testing, is a freelance author for various clients and is highly involved in the testing community.

In addition, with his many years of experience in the testing industry, Lalitkumar Bhamare extends our board.

Lalit is an experienced software testing and quality coach. He is well-known in the testing industry for his passion for the craft of testing and the contributions he has made to take it forward.

Lalit is on the board of directors for the Association for Software Testing, USA, which is one of the most important organizations for testers in the world. Through his blogs, magazine (Tea-time with Testers) and many other initiatives, Lalit is active on his personal mission of improving the craft of testing. And he has been doing so for over a decade already.

The board is completed by Nithin S.S. He is the founder of Synapse QA, a co-writing space for test automation professionals and software quality advocates. He has nearly a decade of experience in the IT field with a focus on test automation delivery of web & mobile-based applications.

We are pleased to welcome such a strong advisory board and the opportunity to move a step closer to our vision of a human-centered digital world.

Yours Sincerely,

Jonas Menesklou,
Managing Director
